Dear Class of 2008,

Between 221 and 206 BCE the first emperor of China, Qin Shi Huang, arranged for the construction of Chinas first Great Wall. Much of the Great Wall we know today was built during the Ming Dynasty almost two thousand years later. In 19 BCE Herod the Great ordered an extension of the Temple Mount in Jerusalem. What is left of this extension today is a site for pilgrimage and prayer known as The Wailing Wall. In the year 1961 of the Common Era construction began on a wall that would divide East from West Berlin for twenty-eight years. The Berlin Wall fell in 1989, setting in motion the reunification of Germany and attracting an enthusiastic audience for a spontaneous David Hasselhoff concert.

In the spring of 2007, Barnard students bid farewell to McIntosh and prepared for the arrival of a new student center which the Class of 2008 will get to enjoy as alumnae. Over the following summer Barnard welcomed a husky group of young men (and, let's be fair, maybe some husky young women, too) who would build a divider down the middle of the campus which, as a testament to our creativity or possibly to our efficiency, would come to be known simply as The Wall. For the past year you've endured the rock drilling and the inconvenient detours. You've passed daily by the silhouettes and the signatures and the flyers. You've put your sweat and your tears into this project--or, at least, you've watched some surly construction workers put their sweat and tears into it while you were undoubtedly putting your sweat and tears into an equally ground-breaking thesis or experiment or portfolio or composition. And now you're done. You join the ranks of Barnard's many distinguished alumnae such as Margaret Meade, Jhumpa Lahiri, Anna Quindlen, and Twyla Tharp.

Maybe you will build great walls, or maybe you will tear them down. Maybe you'll dance on the walls of a studio, and maybe you'll start up a chain of wall to wall organic food super stores. Maybe you'll genetically engineer a new hybrid plant that you'll call a wall flower. Maybe you're just off the wall. Whatever it is you hope to achieve or to become, you're ready to try. As you remember the school which helped you to progress, to grow, and to change, you must always believe that there are no walls to progress, no walls to growth, and no walls to change. You will forever be a part of Barnard, as it will forever be a part of you. You have been children and daughters. You have been students and friends. You are the Barnard Class of 2008. Now it's your turn to go Beyond the Wall and make your mark. Good luck!

All the best,

A History of the College

Since it first opened its doors in 1889, Barnard has remained committed to its mission of providing a high quality liberal arts education to promising and high-achieving young women. Barnard was named after Columbia College's tenth president, Frederick A.P. Barnard, who was a strong advocate of women's education. Ironically, he opposed the idea of establishing a separate institution for women and argued for co-education at Columbia in 1879.

Ten years later, with the help of Annie Nathan Meyer, Barnard was established as an affiliate of Columbia University. It began at a brownstone at 343 Madison Avenue with fourteen students and six faculty members. Nine years later, it found a new home at Milbank Hall in Morningside Heights. As an independent institution affiliated with Columbia University, Barnard maintains its own trustees, faculty, and financial responsibilities, but shares its classrooms, resources, and degree with Columbia University.

On October 7, 1889, Barnard opened at 343 Madison Avenue between 44th and 45th Streets.

Milbank Hall, completed in 1896, was Barnard's first building in Morningside Heights.

The Greek Games began in front of Brooks Hall in 1905.

Over the years, Barnard students have remained politically active, participating in numerous protests on campus.

Farewell, President Shapiro!

In her fourteen-year tenure as the ter leader of Barnard College, double t average tenure of a college preside Judith R. Shapiro pioneered the Nine Wa of Knowing program, doubled the College endowment, helped enhance the physic appearance of the campus, and started t construction of a brand new student cente Her numerous achievements illustrate h devotion to Barnard, but they do not sho the whole picture.

Any Barnard student will rememb President Shapiro walking her dog alo Clarement Avenue every night, or singing the Class Dinner every year. She alwa appeared at the Midnight Breakfast to do out food to the hungry students awaiti their exams the next day, and on Spirit Da she sported an "I Heart BC" t-shirt wi pride.

Beloved by Barnard students and staff alik Judith Shapiro has served her school we and it is with fond memories that we let h go. Best of luck in your future endeavor President Shapiro!

New York City

Morningside Heights

Morningside Heights is our neighborhood, our home base, our home-away-from-home! Besides housing the Barnard and Columbia campuses, the neighborhood's offerings serve as a backdrop for many of our college experiences. Morningside eateries like the Hungarian Pastry Shop, Swish Tom's Restaurant, and Symposium give us places to study and unwind when we want a warm meal or a cup of coffee. Riverside Park is a pleasant escape on a snowy day for a sled race, or on a spring day for a picnic.

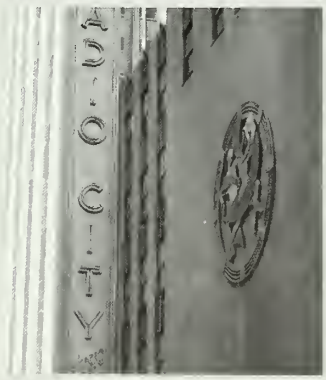
MIDTOWN



While the hustle and bustle of Midtown, often viewed as a touris destination, isn't a part of most Barnard students' everyday lives, it doe figure into fond memories for many. Broadway theaters serve as excitin escapes and inspirations and are part of the unique New York experience For many Barnard students, Midtown is the site of special memories, lik scoring great internships, winning lottery tickets to sellout shows, o visiting fascinating exhibits at one of New York's fine museums.

Further downtown, things get more complicated: streets aren't always parallel, and subways split off in different directions towards Brooklyn. Still, there are treasures to be found by Barnard students. Little cafes and restaurants line the streets; smaller boutiques can be found instead of chains; and smaller concert venues can provide unexpected surprises in the form of up-and-coming bands. The confusion of Downtown makes way for exploration, a key part of the New York experience for any Barnard woman.

Campus Hangouts

In the middle of New York City, Barnard's beautiful four-acre campus provides a home for over 2,000 students. Even with the construction of the Nexus, there is a multitude of places for students to get together for a cup of coffee, a study break, or club meetings. Java City, in its new location in Altschul Atrium, is a hub of activity, often overflowing with students and faculty. Hewitt Dining Hall is a popular hangout for both Barnard and Columbia students as they grab a bite to eat after a long day of classes. And when there is no snow on the ground, Lehman Lawn is teeming with people sunbathing, dancing, or partaking of the Big Sub. During the school year and during the summer, there are always students to be found on the Barnard campus.

Hot spots across Broadway

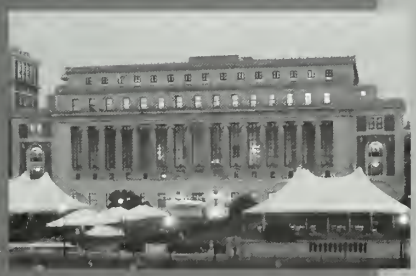
Low Steps are always filled with people, whether they are eating, talking, protesting, or working.

The Sundial's central location on College Walk makes it a prime meeting spot for BC and CU students alike.

When the sun comes out and the weather warms up, green space in the city becomes a rare commodity.

The fountains in front of Low Library signal the end of the school year when they are turned on in the spring.

Butler, Columbia's main library, is always full of students studying and working, especially during exam time when there is not an empty table to be found.

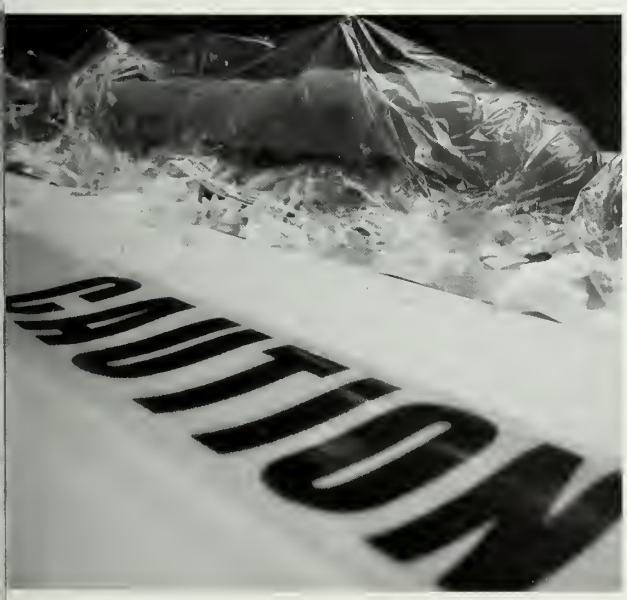


When students rush to club meetings or meet friends for lunch, they have to navigate the long ramps of Lerner.

Barnard Traditions

The Big Sub is one of Barnard's most memorable traditions. This giant sandwich, which stretches from Altschul to the Quad, is created each fall by the McIntosh Activities Council. The Big Sub has something for everyone, with vegetarian and kosher sections. It is the favorite event of many Barnard students. The sub's length changes each year, and not only because of construction projects like the Nexus. In fact, the measured length of the sub always ends in the last two digits of the graduating class. In fall 2007, the sub was 708 feet long, in honor of the Class of 2008. Although the sandwich is devoured within minutes, this event brings the entire campus together for a meal and a break from the midterms season.

The Big Sub



Barnard Traditions

At many colleges, the night before finals week begins is quiet, but at Barnard there is excitement. At eleven pm, students crowd the entrance to Barnard Hall, waiting for one of Barnard's most memorable traditions to start: Midnight Breakfast. The event is a late-night break from studying, with a themed meal of "breakfast-for-dinner" served by the college's deans and administrators. Many look forward to Midnight Breakfast, held in the LeFrak Gymnasium, which is one of the strongest traditions on campus. From "I Yum the 90s" in the fall to the "Be Our Guest" celebration in the spring, each Midnight Breakfast announces itself with pancakes, banana splits, impromptu dance parties, and giveaways.

Midnight Breakfast

Barnard Traditions

Barnard Spirit Day is a yearly celebration of Barnard College and its students, faculty, and administration. The day is full of events, from the "Fan of the Year" Contest to the Greek Games, and Barnard students can be seen sporting "I Heart BC" t-shirts all day. This year, the jungle theme could be seen all over campus, with zebra-striped balloons in every corner, and monkeys hanging from Athena's arms. Co-organized by SGA and McAC, Spirit Day features a large barbecue and ice cream served by the deans. This year's celebration was finished off by a magnificent fireworks display in honor of the Nexus, Barnard's new student center which will be fnished for the spring 2010 semester.

Senior Class Dinner

The Athena Dinner: Wisdom Through the Ages
Thursday, February 28, 2008

The Class of 2008 Senior Dinner was a celebration of our past, present and future tie with Athena as strong, beautiful, Barnard Women. As the incarnation of Wisdom, Reason and Purity in ancient Greek lore, Athena is fundamental to our growth at Barnard. The theme, The Athena Dinner: Wisdom through the Ages was selected to celebrate our 100% commitment to whatever our endeavor: camaraderie, beauty, grace and most importantly a sense of fun; the Warrior Goddess spirit lives on in each of us.

We were honored to have a strong Athenian woman with us as our keynote speaker. A Barnard graduate with honors, class of 1995, Binta Brown embodies the wisdom of Athena by serving on several charitable and civic board committees, while balancing a very successful career as a lawyer. We were also honored with a serenade from the "Don't Give Up Your Day Job" duet featuring Dean Runsdorf and President Shapiro in her last performance at a senior class dinner.

Joined by alumnae faculty and administrators to celebrate our years at Barnard and the path of excellence that lies ahead, we know that whatever path we choose, we will all be successful.

Remi Coker, Senior Class President

Keynotes from the Speaker

Keynote Speaker Binta Brown, BC '95, is know for her career as a successful lawyer, philanthropist, and activist. In her speech, she addressed her own path to success and left Barnard seniors with the message: charge through the bumps in your career and when you do, you will find an infinate amount of interesting possiblities.

Senior Class Fund

The Dinner gave the Senior Fund the opportunity to announce to the Class of 2008 that our class had voted to provide Barnard College with the rooftop furniture of the Nexus Center. This gift was an excellent representation of our class's environmental concerns as the gift highlights green space on our campus. Excited about the class gift, many students took time away from the festivities of the Senior Class dinner, to donate to their soon-to-be Alma Mater.

Senior Winter Gala

A Black and Gold Masquerade

Traditionally, there are two formals held over the course of fours year as an undergraduate at Columbia University, the freshman winter formal and the senior winter formal. For the members of Barnard, Columbia, and SEAS student councils, it was imperative that the class of 2008 go out with style.

The Black and Gold themed masquerade can be traced back to this year's break-out drama Gossip Girl, SEAS '08 Class Rep. Amy Lin notes. To encourage students to purchase tickets, a make-your-own-mask study break was held the Sunday before tickets when on sale. Any of the 600 black masks that were not used for the event were made available during the gala.

While the freshman formal had been in Low Memorial Library's rotunda, the senior formal was held in Roone Arled[illegible] Auditorium. The event was capped at 7[illegible] tickets, which were sold out by 10am t[illegible] day of the event. The decor was black a[illegible] gold themed, with Columbia catering including two chocolate fountains. Mus[illegible] was provided by two senior student DJ[illegible]

Talk about drama!

Bacchantae

Bacchantae, Barnard's only a cappella group, is an energetic, dedicated, and fantastically fun group of female singers. Performing everything from Fiona Apple to Madonna to the Mamas and the Papas, they conduct and arrange all of their songs.

Bach Society

Composed of Columbia students as well as young musicians from around the New York area, the Bach Society presents several concerts both on and off the Columbia campus during each academic year. The primary focus of the Bach Society's performance activities is the music, legacy, and influence of J. S. Bach.

CU Bellydancing

Bringing lovely costumes and traditional Middle Eastern dancing to Columbia University, CU Bellydancing provides students the opportunity to learn more about this beautiful dance form.

CU Bhangra

CU Bhangra was established as a forum for Punjabi Folk Dance, open to all members of the Barnard/Columbia community. CU Bhangra promotes an awareness of South Asian dance by encouraging students interested in Punjabi culture to attend performances and attend or participate in practices.

Dance Dance Revolution Club

DDR Club holds weekly dance sessions to foster the appreciation of the art that is Dance Dance Revolution. In addition, DDR Club performs all over campus at a myriad of events. In 2006, the club was recognized as an SGA Club of the Year.

Fruit Paunch

Fruit Paunch is a student improv group formed in 2003. Annual shows include the "Formal Show" in the winter and the "24 Hour Show" in the spring, which regularly appears in Spectator's 116 Columbia Traditions.

Orchesis

Orchesis is a student-run dance organization that offers performing, non-performing, and social opportunities. They host master classes by professional dance teachers, plan field trips to shows in New York, and produce major dance performances every semester.

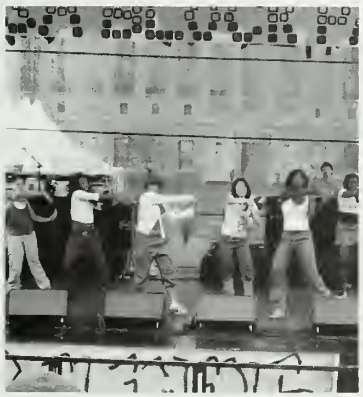
CU Raas

The Columbia University Raas Team is a dance competition team that seeks to promote the awareness of a particular type of Indian folk dance called garba-raas that is indigenous to the state of Gujarat in western India among members of the Columbia University and Barnard College community.

Raw Elementz

Founded in 2001, Raw Elementz is a student-run, student-choreographed dance troupe committed to a style known as fusion, a combination of hiphop, street, funk, jazz, and break dancing. Combining teamwork, dedication, and a serious need to shake it, Raw Elementz works to put on a great show and spread the word about the boogie.

Performance Clubs



Sabor

Sabor is Columbia University's first and only Latino Dance Troupe. Sabor aims to promote the presence of Latino culture at Columbia through the performing arts. With the troupe's passion and great skill, they take the word "sabor," or "flavor" in English, to a whole new level.

CU Swing

CU Swing is dedicated to bringing the excitement of music and dance to Columbia's campus in a style that is unique to New York City. They provide lessons in swing dancing, including Lindy Hop, Charleston, and Balboa. They also have a performance troupe that has danced on campus and around the city.

CU Wind Ensemble

Dedicated to the performance of the finest original wind literature from the Renaissance to the present, CU Wind Ensemble offers an opportunity for accomplished musicians to perform challenging repertoire of various instrumentations and styles. The group performs two concerts each semester.

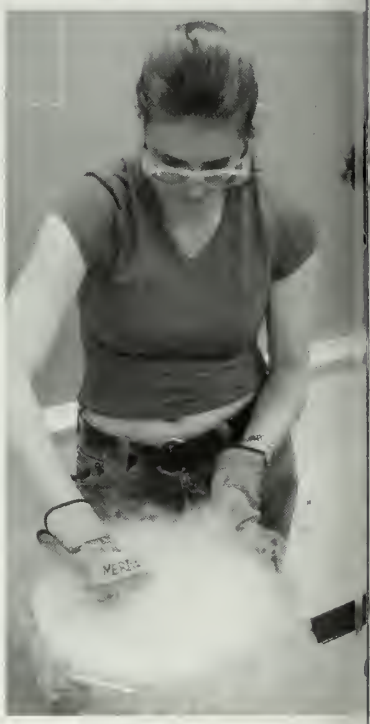
Network of Pre-Medical Students of Color. pH Level. Pre-Health Students Organization. Psychology Club. Women in Politics. Women's International Buiness Council.



CU Architecture Society

CU Architecture Society is a non-profit organization for the promotion of architecture to undergraduate students on the Columbia campus. It is intended to provide a forum for students interested in architecture as a field of study and as a profession to ask questions and learn about graduate schools and the profession within the context of New York City. It is also a loosely structured group, more for social and intellectual gatherings than as a strictly run political organization.

Athena Pre-Law Society

The Athena Pre-Law Society is a pre-professional club that was established as a student organization to serve and support students who plan to attend law school and pursue a career in law. The society familiarizes members with requirements for law school and provides information about the application process. The society also informs members about relevant campus events and publishes a journal each year composed of student articles related to law.

Barnard Chemical Society

BCS is a pre-professional organization that aims to promote fellowship among its members, to encourage the social and academic advancement of the student body, and to foster an atmosphere of achievement and professionalism. Members explore their scientific interests and professional options through listening to a variety of speakers, attending skills workshops and career fairs, and having access to unique networking opportunities. BCS also has many volunteer opportunities available for members.

Education Society

The mission of the Education Society is to raise awareness of educational issues and to build a strong network of future educators in the community. They also strive to create an awareness of the many diverse opportunities in the field of education and to encourage social interaction among members of the education community in order to foster a sense of commitment and dedication to the field. They reach out to the community and bring contemporary issues of education to the forefront of student life.

Pre-Health Students Organization

Pre-Health Students Organization aims to create a less competitive environment among Pre-Meds, to share advice on classes and course work, to voice problems with pre-med curriculum, to get to know the pre-med faculty on a more personal level, and to help its members get into the best med/dental/vet/health schools possible. Past projects have included volunteer work at hospitals, study breaks, career panels, get to know the science faculty events, MCAT practice sessions, and meetings just to share general advice.

Women's International Business Council

Women's International Business Council educates, empowers, and motivates women in their own personal business endeavors by helping them attain and cultivate 21st Century business skills. The Council informs members of all areas of business including, but not limited to marketing, advertising, public relations, accounting, entrepreneurship, government affairs, finance, and business leadership.

Echoes

Echoes was created to fulfill the need of the Barnard community for a general literary magazine that is not exclusive to any racial, religious, or cultural group. Students submit creative writing (poetry, short fiction, creative non-fiction, and drama) and digital forms of visual art.

Mortarboard

The Mortarboard staff strives to preserve the memories of each year. Students come together to work on layout, photography, copywriting, and editing. Staff responsibilities, however, also include dealing with the business end of the yearbook. In its 114th year of operation, Mortarboard is a true Barnard tradition that is still going strong.

The Philolexian Society of Cl

Formally established in 1802 b associates of Alexander Hamilton, but with roots reachin as far back as 1766, the Societ promotes literary awareness an the art of rhetoric among its members, who have ranged fro Allen Ginsberg to Jacques Barzun.

Special Interest Clubs

Barnard Bulletin. Barnard Earth Club. Echoes. Feminist Thought. Ferris Reel Film Society. McAC: McIntosh Activities Council. Moartarboard: Barnard College Yearbook. Nightline. CUSmile. The Philolexian Society of Columbia University. The Proxy. CU Sign Language. Skip Stop Commuter Organization. Smart Women Lead. SAS: Students Against Silence. Tablet. Take Back the Night. Transfer Alliance. V-Day. WBAR.

Skip Stop Commuter Organization

Skip Stop provides services to integrate commuters into the Barnard College community and make commuter life more pleasant. All students registered as commuters according to the Registrar are automatically members of Skip Stop Commuter Organization.

Tablet

Published bi-annually, Tablet represents a collection of literary works and art pieces submitted by members of Columbia and New York's Asian community. Collectively, these literary and artistic expressions form a unique voice that spirals out of the Asian dimension and echoes into the diverse communities in New York City and beyond.

WBAR

WBAR is a freeform, non-commercial, non-profit radio station broadcasting from the Barnard campus. Radio programming is generated entirely by the students who constitute the station's DJ staff. WBAR also organizes some of the hottest concerts in NYC.

Special Interest Clubs

Barnard Bulletin

The Barnard Bulletin is a weekly newsmagazine that strives to be the voice of the college. The magazine features in-depth articles covering all areas of student life.

McIntosh Activities Council

McAC is comprised of an Executive Board, chairpersons, and a general council collectively dedicated to planning and executing extra-curricular activities at Barnard and within the Columbia University community. McIntosh Activities Council provides a wide spectrum of events to meet the needs and desires of broad elements of the community. There are six McAC Committees: Performance Events, Special Events, Multicultural, Community Service, Social Study Breaks, and Student Faculty Alumnae Interaction.

Nightline

Nightline provides anonymous and confidential support to callers in a non-judgmental manner, while maintaining the mental health of its counselors through support within the organization. Every counselor who is working on the phones is expected to remain anonymous to all undergraduate students at Columbia University.

Student Government Association

All Barnard students are members of SGA by contributing their student activities fees, which fund student programming and over 80 SGA recognized clubs. The SGA advises on policy issues, coordinates Tri-partite committees of faculty, administrators, and students, and co-sponsors student programming. As both a funding and governing board the SGA works in collaboration with student groups to enhance campus life, affect change, instill a sense of Barnard pride, and promote community.

Take Back the Night

" We march because we should be able to wear whatever we want. We march because men are survivors too. We march because domestic violence is a problem in all communities. We march because family and friends share the pain. We march because no one should have to be afraid. Tonight is a night of survival in the most active sense of the word. We shout to combat the silence that is forced upon us. Tonight is a night of unity. We march because we recognize only together can we break the cycle of violence. With rage we march and with strength we speak."

Transfer Alliance

The Transfer Alliance creates a welcoming environment for all transfer students. It hopes to create a community that is supportive to all Barnard students who have transferred to the College by establishing a network of transfer students who are available to support each other. The Transfer Alliance works to ease the transition into Barnard and larger Columbia University community.

Faculty

President Judith Shapiro

Dear Members of the Class of 2008 ~

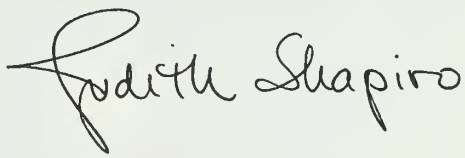
Congratulations on reaching this milestone! I will always feel a special connection to your class, since this is my graduation year too.

No matter where the next decades take you, this yearbook will bring you back to Barnard. As you look through the pages, youll find yourself relaxing on Lehman Lawn, taking notes at a lecture, meeting a friend for coffee at Java City, acing a serve, rehearsing a play, and yes, adeptly navigating the Nexus construction maze. Treasure this book. I assure you that it will mean even more to you decades from now, when you will smile at the photos of classmates and find yourself nostalgic with memories for your Barnard home.

Your student years will always retain a certain magic I recall my own college days with warmth and amazing clarity. At Barnard, you had a great time more often than not, and you learned more from each other than you ever thought possible. I certainly learned a great deal from all of you.

The Mortarboard is a wonderful souvenir of this reality: a collection of faces, faculty, special events, candid encounters, athletics, and thoughtful writing. Enjoy it. And please return to Barnard often to remind yourself of all that you gave to this campus and all that your time here gave to you. And, most definitely, come back to enjoy our newest building in its full completed glory! It belongs to you. Barnard will remain in your hearts, as it surely will in mine, through the next chapters in your lives.

With all good wishes and affection,



Judith Shapiro

Dean Dorothy Denburg

Dear Members of the Class of 2008:

As dean, I had the pleasure of sharing many Barnard moments with you. The passage from "welcome" to "good-bye" has been marked by all of the moments and memories that have formed your Barnard experience--starting with your Orientation, favorite classes, perhaps even the class you shouldn't have taken, friendships, late night conversations, inspiring faculty, lines for L course registration, class dinners, shared laughter, "Nine Ways of Knowing", senior theses, basking in the sun on Lehman Lawn, and, of course, Midnight Breakfasts. Together these experiences have transformed you, as we foretold when you arrived.

I have had the pleasure of getting to know many of you well. I have marveled at your achievements and at the contributions you have made to campus life; and I have watched your growth into confident, competent Barnard women. Recognizing that there are risks in committing my doggerel to print, I will take some lines from my toast to the Class of '08, which I delivered at your Senior Dinner.

...Tonight I am here to toast the Class of '08
We've all come together to help you celebrate.

Your theme this evening is the Wisdom of the Ages.
What I lack in wisdom I make up for in stages,
That is, I've been here at Barnard as student and dean,
With many thousands of students that I've known in between.
Among the decades of classes that have graduated,
The Class of 08 is one to be emulated.
Together you have left your lasting marks on this College.
In SGA, BOSS, or NSOP, your work I acknowledge.
Bulletin, Mortarboard, McAc, the Spec,
W-B-A-R, or Help Desk tech.
Barnard bartenders and Barnard babysitters,
Barnard-Columbia Chorus and Barnard knitters,
Knitting hats for the homeless, founding CU sign,
Eco-reps, and The Proxy, Take Back the Night and NightLine.
NYCCEP, Mujeres, Turath, Smart Women Lead,
Community Impact, teaching children to read.
Ultimate Frisbee, athletes--intramural and varsity,
Dancers and actors--there's no end to your creativity.
MSA, Q, cultural months, and Bacchantae,
Athena Pre-law, Honor Board, and V-Day.
BSARs, RAs, research assistants,
and presidential search committee participants.
Religious group leaders in the Kraft Center and Earl Hall,
When there was a need in the community, you answered the call.
Diversity issues and hurricane relief,
Each of you has acted upon your belief.

All of us take pleasure and pride in the women of the Class of 2008. I wish each of you happiness in the years ahead. I know you will make your mark on the world as you have here at Barnard.

With warm wishes,

Dorothy L. Denburg

Commencement - May 20, 2008

Esteemed class of 2008: it is my honor to bring you greetings and best wishes from the faculty of Barnard College. They have been your partners in learning for these four years and they are here today to celebrate your achievements.

They have determined the requirements for your degree and the aims for the curriculum that include critical thinking, effective action, and the self-renewing resourcefulness that is the mark of a liberal arts education. Part of that resourcefulness is derived from the study of gender, and the study of the diversity and commonality of human endeavors in civilizations around the world and through time.

Frances Hesselbein, the 1998 recipient of the Presidential Medal of Freedom has been cited "as a pioneer for women, diversity and inclusion" for her work as CEO of Girl Scouts from 1976 to 1990. She was a long-term colleague of the late Peter Drucker and now is chair of the Leader to Leader Institute that grew from his work. With Rob Johnston, she has written of the need to examine the future systematically through what Drucker called the right hand of disciplined thinking and the left hand of openness to surprise. She admits that it is harder to enjoy the unexpected, while arguing that organizations and people miss opportunities to adapt to waves of change because they cannot see the waves coming.

She writes: That is why diversity is a core leadership issue. Ultimately this goes beyond racial, ethnic, or gender diversity, although it includes all of them. It has everything to do with how we see the world. I believe successful organizations of the future will work consciously to develop diversity of thought.... Organizations and communities need many eyes. Only by working with people who see things differently can we truly be open to surprise.

So too do we hope that your years here at Barnard, inside and outside the classroom, have supported and challenged you to develop the habits of mind that embrace diversity of thought, that enable you to transform an openness to surprise into understanding and effective action in this ever-changing world. Remember: the right hand of disciplined thinking and the left hand of openness to surprise.

On the evening of your convocation ceremony in August 2004, I quoted American author John Irving: "You can only grow by coming to an end of something, and by beginning something else." On behalf of the Barnard faculty, I affirm that your period of growth here is coming to an end, and that we will be proudly watching as you begin something else.

We send you off through the Barnard gates with the words of Garrison Keillor: "Be well, do good work, and keep in touch."

Jennifer Schwartz

Dear Jennifer:
May you bring joy and knowledge to those you touch in life.
We know your life will be filled with Health, Happiness, Long Life, Peace and Prosperity.
We are so proud of you, your accomplishments and the person you have become.
You are loved always and forever.
Nana, Poppy, Michael, Bradley, Maxine, Willy and your Dad

Nicole Botesazan

Dearest Nicole,

It has been a pleasure watching you grow from an inquisitive, beautiful little girl into a sophisticated, intelligent young lady. We are so proud of all you have achieved and the loving person you have become. Remember to have fun and stay passionate about your dreams.

We love you so much. Congratulations!
Mom, Dad, Maxine, Justin, and Jason

Sarah Jacqueline Rosen

Never afraid to seize life,
Never more ready to take it on!

With love and pride,
Mom, Dad, Joanna and Elizabeth

Helen Skiba

"I put on my shoes and say goodbye, throwing my hands up into the stars."
Don't stop dancing, kid.
We cherish you.
Mom and Dad

Rachel Felber

Dear Rachel,

You have filled our lives with tremendous pride and joy in the person you have become and the goals you have achieved. Be passionate - dream big - we know you will succeed in whatever you undertake!

Love, Mom and Dad, David, Jessica and Lisa

Allison Gottfried

Allie,
It's amazing how fast time has gone. One minute you were our adorable baby and the next you are this beautiful, accomplished young woman! You have always marched to the beat of a different drummer and we've always been there to support you and cheer you on-- even if your beat was different than ours. We couldn't be more proud of you and couldn't love you more! We wish you a lifetime of happiness and success. You will always be our "Allie Bal" and our "Allie Babbling Brooke."
Love, Mom and Dad

Dorian Greer Mergler

Dearest Dorian,

Expect miracles and then make them happen.

We love you past the black hole and beyond.
Mom, Dad, Jaimey, Amy, Syd, and Nana

Beautiful Brit,
We are so proud of you!
Congratulations on another success!
To many more and a lifetime of love, laughs
and much happiness.
You are so special.

We love you so very much,
Mommy and Daddy

Brittany Sorice

To my Sis,

I am so proud of you- for all that youve accomplished and for the beautiful person you have become. I know that whatever you decide to do and anything you undertake , you will most certainly succeed. You have the drive, the passion, and the intelligence. I love you so much, you are my best friend, and I want you to know
I will ALWAYS be here for you!

Love always,
Bri

Hygeia Reyes

To Our Geia Reyes,
Congratulations, Bing! We pray that God continues to bless you with more success, adventures, and happiness in your bright future. You're a ray of sunshine in our lives, a beautiful and talented young woman, and a wonderfully one of a kind. We're so proud of you.
Love Always,
Nay, Tay and Ate

Kara Marlene Palmore

Congratulations Kara!
Your creative visions will surely make the world a better and more beautiful place. We are so very proud of you!
Love,
Daddy, Mommy, Jackie and Haley

Adrienne Latimer Stillman

Bacchantae, Leland, summers in Maine and Martha's Vineyard, Jessie and Keaton friends forever, Christmas with the Grays and the Hines, a cruise in the Galapagos, Spain with Jorge - you are a world traveler beloved by all but especially your brother and your Mom and Dad who watch you graduate with love and admiration for all you have accomplished and highest hopes for what lies ahead!
